

Sample Script

“If Corporate Culture Had Background Noise”

Use only office sounds:

- keyboard
- coffee machine
- meeting room door
- laughter
- “good job”
- “let’s review together”

No music.

Ending:

“Healthy workplaces sound different.”

“The Email That Changed Someone’s Day”

Entire reel centered around:

A small appreciation message.

Show:

employee stressed → receives appreciation → smiles quietly.

Ending:

“Recognition doesn’t need to be loud.”

“HR’s Favorite Email”

Concept

Not resignation mails.

But:

- appreciation mails
- promotion announcements
- employee success stories
- internal growth updates

Ending:

“Growth stories are our favorite notifications.”

“The 5-Minute Silence Before a Client Call”

SUPER relatable corporate moment.

Show:

- fixing camera
- checking mic
- nervous faces
- reading notes
- deep breath

Ending:

“Every expert still gets nervous sometimes.”

“A Corporate Superpower Nobody Talks About”

Reveal:

Staying calm during problems.

Show:

- issue escalation
- tense atmosphere
- consultant solving calmly

Ending:

“Some people solve problems quietly.”

VERY premium feel.

“The Most Realistic Corporate Reel Ever”

Entire reel:

Just employees staring at loading screens.

SAP people will RELATE instantly.

Add:

- “Can you hear me?”
- “You’re on mute.”
- “Sharing my screen...”

This becomes niche-relatable content.

“Nobody Talks About This Corporate Emotion”

Topic:

The happiness after solving difficult issue.

Show:

- tense faces
- debugging/problem solving
- final relief

Ending:

“Some victories are silent.”

“A Day Without Corporate Buzzwords”

FUNNY subtle satire.

No:

- synergy
- bandwidth
- alignment
- leverage

Employees struggling to speak normally.

VERY LinkedIn-friendly humor.

“The Corporate Introvert Experience”

Show:

- avoiding camera
- nervous in meetings
- typing instead of speaking

Then:

supportive team inclusion.

Ending:

“Not every strong employee is loud.”

“Every SAP Meeting Ever”

Scenes:

- “Can you hear me?”
- “You’re on mute.”
- “Let me share my screen.”

- awkward silence
- everyone pretending to understand immediately

Ending:

“Global collaboration in its natural habitat.”

“The Fastest Growing Skill in Corporate”

Reveal:

Pretending to understand abbreviations.

Lines:

“Yes yes absolutely.”
(Googles secretly.)

“Corporate Translation”

Fun format.

“Let’s connect tomorrow”
= not today

“Quick discussion”
= 45 minutes

“Small update”
= entire workflow changed

Most Realistic Corporate Reel Ever”

Entire reel:

employees reacting differently after:

“Client joined the call.”

Instant posture correction.

“How Corporate Friendships Start”

Usually:

- “Can you hear me?”
- “Do you have the latest file?”
- “Coffee?”

Ending:

“Deadlines create friendships.”

A Day Through Office Objects

Entire reel from the perspective of:

Option A: Coffee Mug

"I've attended more meetings than some employees."

Option B: Office Chair

"I know who's stressed just by how they sit."

Option C: Laptop

"I open 47 tabs daily and still get blamed."

Very unique storytelling format.

Corporate Through Different Eyes

Same office.

Viewed by:

New Joiner

Everything feels huge.

Team Lead

Everything feels urgent.

HR

Everything feels people-focused.

Intern

Everything feels confusing.

Ending

"One workplace. Different journeys."

THE RECRUITMENT TIMELINE

Visual

A candidate submits a resume.

Freeze frame.

Suddenly 4 people appear around the resume:

- HR
- Hiring Manager
- Team Lead
- Candidate

Each person narrates what they're thinking at the same moment.

Candidate:

"Hope they call."

HR:

"Interesting profile."

Manager:

"Can this person solve our challenges?"

Team Lead:

"Hope they join soon."

Ending

"One application. Many perspectives."

BEFORE THE FIRST DAY

Concept

Show everything happening BEFORE a new employee joins.

Laptop arranged.

ID card printed.

Email created.

Desk prepared.

Welcome message drafted.

Employee doesn't know any of this.

Ending

"Your first day starts long before you arrive."

This is unique HR storytelling.

"If Skills Could Talk"

Employee sitting in interview.

Behind them stand characters:

- Communication Skill
- Technical Skill
- Teamwork
- Problem Solving

Each one tries to sell itself.

Technical Skill:

"I built the project."

Communication:

"Yeah, but I explained it."

Ending

"Great careers are built by more than one strength."